What has happened?

Most of the parties to the KFC Rest Breaks Class Action have agreed to settle the proceedings without a trial. If the settlement is approved by the Federal Court then KFC and its franchisees will pay money compensation to current and former KFC workers who worked a shift of four hours or more between 25 October 2017 and 22 December 2022 but didn't get a 10-minute paid rest break.

The total amount of compensation depends on a formula but is expected to be around $28.8 million. It will be shared among the eligible workers who register, and individual payments will be calculated by reference to the number of breaks the worker was entitled to.

If you are a current or former employee in a KFC-branded store, who worked a shift of four hours or more between October 2017 and December 2022 but didn't get a 10-minute paid rest break, you need to register before 26 June 2026 to claim your share of the compensation.

How do I register?

Submit your free and confidential registration before 26 June 2026 by either:

Filling out the online registration form here.

Emailing the registration form at Annexure A to the attached Notice of Proposed Settlement to kfcclassaction@shine.com.au or the SDA at campaigns@sda.com.au

What if I do nothing?

If you are an eligible employee and do not register you will not receive any share of the compensation and, if the settlement is approved by the Court, you will not be able to bring any claim against your employer for any failure to give you paid rest breaks, unless you have opted out of the proceeding.

For more information about the Proposed Settlement, refer to the 'Notice of Proposed Settlement' attached to this email.
